Pre-Symposium Interactive Workshop:

A Person-Music System at Work

Africa by Dr. Gertina van Schalwyk, Department of Psychology, University of Pretoria, South Africa

The workshop involves participants in a people-music whole system and joins the concepts of music, art and space in the exploration of multiple research realities. The workshop takes place in three phases:

1. The participants are given an unstructured drawing task, which they are to complete in total darkness while listening to pre-recorded music
2. The same piece of music is played again, this time in illuminated room, and participants are asked to write down whatever words, images or feelings occur to them through a process of free association.
3. Participants engage in an unstructured group discussion about their experiences during the administration of the technique. During this phase, a facilitator encourages self-disclosure by posing open-ended questions and participants will, together with the facilitator/researcher, explore the research model proposed in the paper presentation.
